1. Overcrowding

Overcrowding means having too many people in a space.

For urbanization:

More people move to urban areas

Population density increases

Cases overcrowded cities

2. Housing @ Slum

3. Healthcare and Education

Urbanization

Limited Resources

Lower Quality Care

3. Healthcare and Education

Backward communities

Limited Access to Quality Education

Poor Learning Outcomes

Limited Opportunities

Lower progress

Education

4. Traffic jam

1

Increased Travel Times

People spend more time stuck in traffic, which means they have less time for work and family.

2

Environmental Impact

Traffic jam impacts on environment by air pollution, noise pollution and so on.

3

Economic Costs

Includes higher fuel consumption, lost productivity due to longer travel times and business disruptions.

5. Environmental Degradation

1 Air Pollution

Increased vehicle emissions, industrial activities, and waste management contribute to poor air quality.

2 Deforestation

Development often replaces green spaces, leading to loss of biodiversity and increased carbon emissions.

3 Waste management challenges

Waste Management Challenges:

When household, factory, and dangerous waste are not thrown away properly, it harms the environment and can make people sick.

6. Unemployment and Informal Sector Growth

1 Job Market Challenges

Rapid urbanization often outpaces job creation, leading to unemployment and underemployment.

2 Informal Sector Growth

The informal sector expands to meet basic needs, but lacks legal protections, job security, and social benefits.

3 Economic Inequality

When some people have fewer chances than others, it leads to a gap in wealth between groups.

7. Social Inequality

Income Inequality

Rapid economic growth often helps only a few people, while many others stay poor.

Access to Resources

Unequal access to housing, healthcare, and education keeps people divided.

Social Isolation

Backward communities may feel socially isolated, which limits their opportunities and participation.

8. Urban Crime and Security Issues

1

Increased Crime Rates

Overcrowding, poverty, and lack of jobs can increase crime rates in urban areas.

2

Social Disorder

Inequality, limited opportunities, and weak social services can lead to social chaos and fighting.

3

Security Concerns

More security measures are put in place to tackle crime and safety issues, but this can affect privacy and freedoms.
